The annual village meeting was held at the high school building on Tuesday evening, with a large attendance. L. B. Johnson was the moderator, and after calling the meeting to order, he called upon the clerk to read the warning, and it was then decided to act upon the new charter. Hardly had this been motioned than several objections were made by a few in the room, and the result was a long discussion, which was followed by a motion to have the new charter printed and each voter supplied with a copy, so that all might know just what they were subscribing to, if they voted to adopt the same. This motion was carried, and the meeting was adjourned to two weeks from Tuesday night, when it is expected that the business will be completed.

The Randolph suffrage class met at the home of Mrs. Guy Lamson on Wednesday afternoon with a small attendance. Mrs. G. P. Lamson gave a paper on suffrage, which she prepared for the Woman's Literary club, and which proved very interesting.

The son, Alvin Day, who holds a responsible position in Washington, D. C., was present and will remain for a few days with his mother, while packing the household goods ready for removal.

BARRE ASTONISHED BY MERCHANT'S STORY

As a merchant relates the following: "For years I could not sleep without turning every hour. Whatever I ate caused gas and sourness. Also had stomach catarrh. ONE SPOONFUL buckhorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adler's-ka relieved me INSTANTLY." Because Adler's-ka flushes the ENTIRE alimentary tract it relieves ANY CASE constipation, sour stomach or gas and prevents appendicitis. It is QUICKEST action of anything we ever sold. ## At Rest.

After years of poor health and suffering, Mrs. Elizabeth J. Hammond, wife of Dr. St. J. Hammond, died at the home of her step-daughter, Mrs. W. P. Leffler, 31 Isham street, Burlington, Friday morning, April 27, 1917, at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Hammond, whose maiden name was Elizabeth J. Scott, was born in Alabama, Genesee county, N. Y., in 1846. When a child her parents moved to Emerald Grove, Rock county, Wisconsin. Here Miss Scott came to be a very successful teacher in graded and normal schools, both in the northern and southern states.

In 1866, she married Dr. Hammond of East Calais. They were married in Wisconsin. They traveled extensively for Dr. Hammond's health, visiting almost every state in the union. Mrs. Hammond tenderly cared for Dr. Hammond's baby daughter, who is now Mrs. W. P. Leffler. Dr. Hammond died in 1888 and their home was broken up after living 12 years in Florida.

In 1914, Mrs. Hammond had a serious fall and since had suffered from rheumatism, her hands and feet having grown badly out of shape. She tried many changes of climate and various "helps," but steadily grew worse. Twice she visited her brother, Walter M. Scott, in California, the latter visit extending to his death in 1910. She then returned to Vermont, making her home with her daughters, Mrs. W. P. Leffler of Burlington and Mrs. M. N. Kiser of Plainfield, also with Dr. Hammond's sister, Mrs. C. R. Dwinell of East Calais.

Since last September she had been living in Burlington, failing rapidly, though tenderly cared for by Mrs. Leffler, who gratified her every wish. She was able to sit up every day almost until the last. Her daughters were both with her the last week, doing all that could be done for her comfort.

Mrs. Hammond, a lifelong Congregationalist, was at her death a member of a California Presbyterian church. She was also identified with Hermona chapter, Eastern Star, and Torosa Rebekah lodges of Santa Ana, Cal.

The funeral was held at the East Calais church Monday, April 30, at 1 p. m., with interment in the East Calais cemetery beside her husband. Rev. S. F. Blomfield of the Montpelier Congregational church officiated. Miss Esther Dwinell sang two solos, "Only Waiting" and "Hold Thou My Hand." Miss Sylvia Bliss played "Lead, Kindly Light."

Mrs. Hammond leaves to mourn her loss her two daughters, Mrs. W. P. Leffler and Mrs. M. N. Kiser, also their husbands, W. P. Leffler and M. N. Kiser, and their families: Harrison H. Leffler of Burlington, M. Carr Leffler of Derby Line, Margaret E. and Clarence H. Kiser of Plainfield; her eldest sister, Mrs. J. T. Boynton, besides many nieces and nephews in Wisconsin; also her sister-in-law, Mrs. C. R. Dwinell of East Calais, and many friends scattered throughout the states.

There were lovely bunches of white and pink carnations, hyacinths, pansies, violets and lilies at the funeral.

CABOT

Next Friday preparatory lecture will be held in the vestry of the Congregational church at 2:30 p. m.

Mrs. D. C. Page of Woburn, Mass., spent last week at Charles Howland's.

About two inches of snow fell Tuesday night. Perhaps some of the older residents of Cabot will remember the first day of May in 1874, when snow fell the last day of April one foot deep, the wind blowing it into drifts so that roads had to be broken out. The first day of the funeral of Mrs. Rufus Severance was held in the M. E. church, and teams were busy going to and from the house near Charles Crane's to the Danville road to make it possible for the funeral procession. Sunday, May 3, people went to church in sleighs. Notes from a diary kept that year, 1874.

Miss Mary McAllister returned to St. Johnsbury Tuesday after spending a week with her father and other relatives. Frank Walbridge has finished work for E. P. Walbridge and returned to his home in Woodville.

George Laird was a business visitor in Montpelier Saturday.

The Sunday and Wednesday evening meetings of the Congregational church will commence at 7:30 o'clock until further notice.

Mrs. Louisa Blair fell when coming off the new piazza at William Keniston's last week and broke her right wrist. She put her hand on a board, which gave way, letting her fall on the stone steps, bruising her face. Dr. L. W. Burbank was called and set the broken bone.

Communion services will be held at the Congregational church next Sunday morning.

E. A. Merritt was a business visitor in Barre Tuesday.

The proceeds of the May day breakfast at the Congregational church amounted to $24.

Mrs. Ed Paquin was called to East Cabot recently to care for her father and mother, who were ill.

Sidney Currier goes to Boston this week. He has enlisted as civil engineer.

Ellsworth Tebbetts was a business visitor in Hardwick recently.

CHELSEA

Milward C. Taft, one of the hustling young attorneys of Addison county who has been successfully practicing law in Bristol for the past two years, has located here for the practice of his profession and is established in the court house in the offices occupied for nearly twelve years by Stanley C. Wilson, who on account of his recent election to a position on the superior bench is obliged to retire from law practice, and it is largely through Judge Wilson's efforts that Mr. Taft has decided to come to Chelsea to locate. Mr. Taft is twenty-seven years old and is a native of William, was raised on a farm, attended Vergennes high school and is a graduate of the Ohio Northern University College of Law in Columbus, Ohio, for a short time, returning to Vermont and after working in the law offices of Stickney, Sargent & Skeels of Ludlow for a time sufficient to meet the requirements of the Vermont law was admitted to the bar in this state. He was assistant secretary of the Vermont Senate in 1915 and again in 1917. He comes from Bristol well recommended by those who know him for honesty, ability and willingness to work. He has a wife and one child and will soon move his family to Chelsea but will necessarily require some time to close up his business matters in Addison county. His office will be kept open all the time in Chelsea, as Miss Lydia S. Buell and Lyle R. Beck, with, who have assisted Mr. Wilson in the past, will remain for a time at least. Judge Wilson will retain desk room in the offices for the more convenient handling of his personal business and the estates in his charge.

MILK SHORTAGE FEARED.

New England Milk Producers' Association is Alarmed.

Boston, May 3.—Alarmed by the growing scarcity of grain and the soaring prices, officials of the New England Milk Producers' association have sent out a call for mass meetings in 58 counties of New England, at which the men who produce milk may discuss the situation freely with clergymen, bankers, editors, business men and manufacturers and endeavor to devise ways and means to avert a situation which threatens disaster to the six northeastern states of the country.

The date fixed for the meeting is Monday, May 7, and while nearly all will be held at the same hour, details as to time and place will be left to the heads of the county organization of the association.

Producers will be expected to state plainly and unequivocally the present situation, what may be expected of them in the production of milk if existing conditions continue and the general result on dairy products if no change can be expected.

Reports to the Boston headquarters of the association are to the effect that many producers all over the territory are discouraged by the grain prices and outlook; that hundreds of cows are being sold for slaughter; that calves are

OFFERS STATE FAIR GROUNDS.

For State Troops or Regulars Training in Vermont.

The Vermont state fair commission, at a meeting held in the office of Secretary Davis at White River Junction Tuesday, voted unanimously to offer the use of the state fair grounds to the governor, to be utilized by United States troops, the First Vermont regiment or Home Guards for a drill ground, rendezvous camp, or any purpose for which they are adequate. In case the state or the United States government should decide to organize an aviation corps in the east the grounds would be found to be almost ideal for this purpose.

The commission extended power to the secretary to let out such plots of ground as are suitable for garden purposes to the school children of the town of Hartford.

Commissioner Mann was made superintendent of amusements. He reported that the attractions to be presented at the fair to be held on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Sept. 18, 19, 20 and 21, would embrace many novelties, including an air man who would give demonstrations that would typify air warfare as carried on in the European conflict.

It was decided to limit the poultry exhibit to producing breeds from Vermont and New Hampshire and to change this exhibit from the regular poultry pavilion to one of the cattle exhibition sheds, and to hold an automobile show in the poultry pavilion. This exhibit will be in charge of Superintendent Williams, who will also have charge of the midway. It was voted to give night shows on the midway, with the vaudeville performers who will give entertainments on the open stage in front of the grand stands each afternoon, furnishing free entertainments. It is anticipated that with this action the midway will be the largest and best ever seen on the state fair grounds.

There were eight commissioners present at the meeting and all present predicted the state fair would be liberally patronized this year.

When you know physicians have prescribed Resinol for over 20 years in the treatment of eczema and other itching, burning, unsightly skin eruptions, and have written thousands of reports saying: "It is my regular prescription for itching." Resinol has produced brilliant results. "The result it gave was marvelous in one of the worst cases of eczema," etc., etc., doesn't it make you feel, "This is the treatment I can rely on for MY skin-trouble?"

When Resinol Ointment touches itching skin, the itching usually stops and healing begins. With the aid of Resinol Soap, it almost always clears away eczema, ringworm, pimples, or other distressing eruption quickly, leaving the skin clear and healthy. Sold by all druggists.

Use Resinol Soap regularly and you will be astonished to find how quickly it soothes and cleanses the pores, and leaves the complexion clear and fresh.

A Race at the Aero Club

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

Down at Wellington they've got the aeroplane craze. There's a concern that has made a machine with a lot of safety appliances that is especially fitted for amateur aeronauts. The women have taken up the fad the same as the men. They've organized a club, with first rate starting grounds, and, although it's all brand new, there are a dozen members who own their machines, and in good weather some of them are flying all the while. Those who haven't aeroplanes sit on the clubhouse porch with opera glasses in their hands watching the fliers and dithering.

A race between two individuals, Beverly Yorke and Jim Springer, took place not long ago, on which there was a lot of money placed. It wasn't a fair race, but there was nothing that came within the rules as being foul.

A 200 mile course was laid out, starting from the clubhouse. It first went to Arlington, then south to Jonesville, then southeast to Merryman, then northeast to Hilton, then straight west to Barrington, then to the clubhouse. The fliers were to go over a certain church spire in each town, except Jonesville, where there was a big factory, and they were to pass above the 200 foot chimney that belonged to it. Yorke was to start westward and Springer eastward. The one who got back to the clubhouse first was to be declared the winner. As to the fliers observing all the rules, this was secured by a club member being stationed at the different points they were to pass over.

The machines, being merely for pleasure, were not especially powerful. There were machines with strong engines in the club, but this race was limited to the pleasure class. It wasn't expected that the race would be made in less than three hours. At 10 o'clock the club grounds were full of members and guests to see the race, and a number of machines were flying about, dashing hither and thither, rising, ducking and doing different stunts.

One of these belonged to Kate Winterton, who in the air topped every other woman member for flying and on terra firma topped them all for dithering. She had every man in the club by the ears, and it was generally conceded that when she undertook to bring a man to his marrowbones he might as well come down at once.

Yorke was the favorite at odds of five to four. At least these were the odds up to the day before the race. But that night they suddenly changed to two to one on Springer. The queer thing about it was that no one could find out why this change should have come about. There were rumors about Yorke not being in a condition to race or his machine having been found wanting in some particular, but they were nothing but rumors and were looked upon as mere jockeying for odds.

At 11 o'clock the two machines were rolled out on the starting grounds, the one pointed west, the other east. The racers took their seats, and half a dozen men did the starting for each machine at the same moment. As they rose the aeroplanes that were tilting about to see the fun started off in different directions, either to intercept the racers or to take some central point where they hoped to keep the machines in sight by means of glasses. Kate Winterton's last victim was Jim Springer. She had been seen on the clubhouse porch during the evening before the race spooning with him, and it was expected by their observers that she would keep in touch with him in the contest to encourage him. But in this they were disappointed. She followed neither of the fliers, hovering over the club grounds and by signs communicating with those below how the race was going. When the racers had been out a couple of hours she was seen to fly away in the direction of Merryman and was soon out of sight.

When she came within seeing distance of the fliers they had met and Yorke had passed the halfway point greatly ahead of Springer. Kate made a bee line for Yorke, who had started westward and was nearing Hilton. He had met his opponent so far ahead of the point he should have been and felt so certain of winning that he was not pressing his machine. Kate sailed up within hearing distance.

"Oh, Mr. Yorke," she called, "I'm so glad!"

"Glad about what?"

"You're going to win."

"That's very nice of you."

They sailed along in company for awhile when something seemed to go wrong with Kate's machine. It careened first on one side, then on the other.

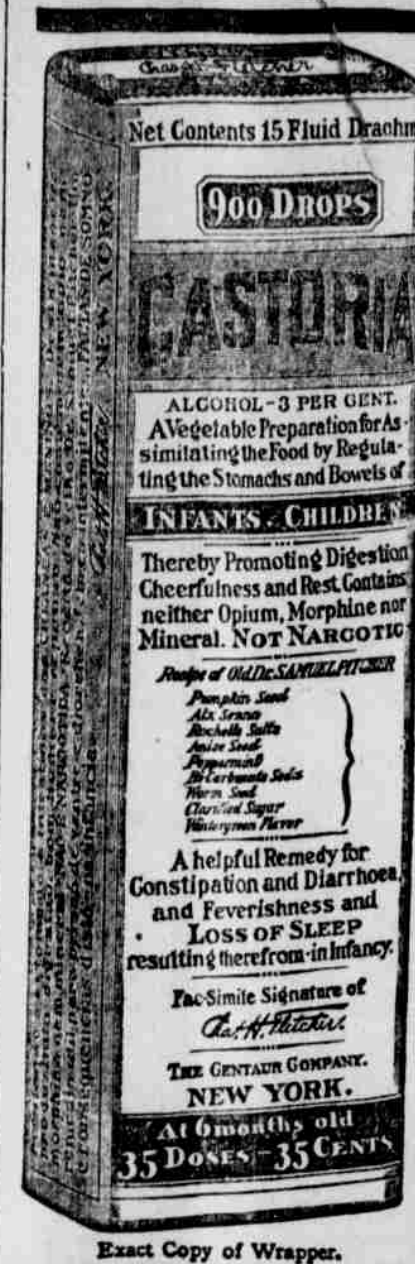

"I'm afraid I'm going to fall!" she cried in a voice of terror, and, true enough, she went down rapidly till she struck the earth, but managed her machine so well that there was no absolute drop. Yorke was too much of a man to leave her in distress and followed her, finding her lying on the ground beside her machine in a state of collapse.

Well, to make a long story short, Kate kept him ministering to injuries that were not serious till he had lost the race. But he came out ahead in the game of love if he lost the race. He refused to say a word about what Kate confessed was a frame up, remunerating those who had lost money backing him and otherwise showing that he was a thoroughbred. This won over Kate, and instead of Yorke tumbling to her she tumbled to him.
